By now you have probably heard about Broadcom's acquisition of VMware. This industry change has left many organizations facing concerns over rising costs, the need for simplified management, better cloud integration, performance, scalability, and vendor lock-in, leading them to seek alternative business solutions.

This is where DCG comes in. As a trusted Microsoft Solutions Partner, we offer a range of options that address these concerns and help you navigate this transition smoothly.

If you are considering a migration from VMware to Microsoft, here are the options we offer:

Azure

Ideal for companies of all sizes, particularly those looking to enhance their digital transformation journey, optimize costs, and improve scalability. Startups, SMBs, and large enterprises alike can leverage Azure to accelerate their development cycles, reduce time-to-market, and achieve greater agility in a competitive landscape.

Azure Stack HCI

This solution is well-suited for mid-sized to large enterprises looking to modernize their data centers, implement hybrid cloud strategies, or enhance their disaster recovery capabilities. We help organizations with significant on-premises infrastructure maximize efficiently with Azure Stack HCI, ensuring high performance and simplified management.

Hyper-V

This solution benefits companies by providing a cost-effective and efficient way to consolidate workloads, improve disaster recovery plans, and streamline IT management. Hyper-V is a reliable and high-performance solution for virtualizing workloads, making it a great choice for enterprises that prefer to keep their virtualization environment strictly on-premises.

Azure VMware Solution

Organizations benefit from the scalability, security, and cost-efficiency of Azure while maintaining the familiarity and consistency of their VMware tools and processes. This option simplifies cloud transition by including VMware licenses in the service, reducing complexity and eliminating extra licensing purchases.
